The Only Fitting Statement that Distinguishes the G-20 is: “The Problem is Capitalism”

(Translated)

Turkey hosted the G-20 Summit between the 15th and 16th of November in the case where this summit, which was chaired by the President of the Republic Recep Tayyip Erdogan, dealt with the current global economic situation, continuous growth and development, climate change, trade, investment and energy in addition to economic topics. Other issues were also put forward like the issue of Syria, the refugee problem in Europe and “Fighting terrorism” within the margins of the interests of these States.

As such and after the Paris attacks, the killing of Muslim civilians upon Syrian territories by France has been deemed acceptable as a natural response and reaction to the situation. Similarly these states that have no limits when it comes to gall and tyranny in the case where they spread terror within the world, made an announcement about the final statement comprising of 9-points about fighting terrorism in a conference that had talked about terrorism.

The G-8 states established the G-20 to incorporate the developing states so that the grouping which possesses a basis that can be controlled by them for the purpose of dealing with crises. This is in the case where the major American crisis that began in 2008 revealed the corruption of the Washington convention announced in 1978. This is because it was unable to carry the burden of the old capitalist setup. Similarly the G-20 in its basis was set up as an organisation that acts to convince the rest of the world's states to proceed in line with the interests of the major states that represent capitalism in the West. According to figures, only 46% of the decisions or resolutions taken by the G-20 have been implemented whilst it is well known which of the states are the ones who implement them. Therefore the G-20 can only be considered as a base that has never had any power to officially enforce anything because it was setup for the purpose of lightening the burden of capitalism.

In the G-20 meetings, they study the world economic situation however they definitely never go outside of the Washington convention. This means that they specify the setup and the financial policies in accordance to their interests and within the scope of the Washington convention. So for instance in the G-20 they discussed global warming although it is these states that have caused it. They also discussed the refugee problem and when examining those emigrating we find that the cause of their emigration is also savage colonial capitalism. They discussed the energy problem and we see that the western states are the ones who pounce upon the energy resources for their colonialism. This is also like they claimed to examine the issue of terrorism whilst it's also them who occupy the states of peoples that they accuse of terrorism and then they usurp their wealth and kill them without mercy. They also examined the issue of Syria as it stands today whilst they are supporting the butcherer Bashar who has caused the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Muslims. This is just as they are supporting the regime by land and air for the purpose of stealing the Syrian revolution from the Muslims.

The only statement that is fitting of the G-20 is the statement of the Koç Holding Board Member and Executive Committee Member Ali Y. Koç before the summit, when he said: "For the sake of ending inequality it is necessary to end capitalism. I believe that it is necessary to reduce inequality to its lowest level in the least. The real problem is capitalism".

This statement is a true statement as the fundamental problem of the Muslims and humanity at large is capitalism and its rotten ideology emanating from secularism and democracy. This ideology has covered the world like a black cloud and turned humanity basically into slaves. This is because humanity as a whole is in need today, as it was in need previously, to the guidance of Islam and its justice. For that reason it is not enough just to make clear that the cause of the problem is capitalism alone, but rather it is necessary to reveal the single one solution and it is necessary to express in a loud voice that the ideology that carries humanity's salvation that is currently suffering under capitalism, is the ideology of Islam. This is because socialism has died and capitalism is breathing its last breath. As for Islam, it is still alive and its pulse is beating, waiting for the one who will carry it and implement it within life's domain. Therefore the obligation upon us is to rush forth for the purpose of establishing the rightly guided Khilafah upon the path of the Prophethood; which will apply the rulings of Islam and spread justice and guidance to the world as a whole and liberate it from the clutches of capitalism.
